Duplication Request Form

Reproduction requests are granted at the discretion of Special Collections staff and are completed by Special Collections staff. Due to staffing limitations, staff may not be able to complete reproduction orders immediately. Single reproductions of an item can be made for a researcher's personal use as long as the process will not damage the original or infringe on copyright. Photocopying is not provided for rare books, photographic materials, fragile items or certain oversized newspapers. Scanning is not available for oversize or bound items.

Copyright

Use of materials from Special Collections and University Archives must conform to current copyright laws. Users assume full responsibility for any legal questions that may arise as the result of their use of materials in the collections. For more information, see the Colgate University Libraries' information page on copyright <http://exlibris.colgate.edu/Reserves/copyright.html>.

CONDITIONS

1. I will cite "Special Collections and University Archives, Colgate University Libraries" as the owner of the manuscript(s) in all publications.
2. I am aware that permission from the Archives to obtain reproductions does not constitute permission to publish; I must obtain such permission from the copyright holder.
3. I agree not to make additional copies of this material.
4. I understand that the reproductions are for my personal use only and may not be transferred to or deposited with another archives, library or other institution without the written permission of Special Collections staff.
5. I agree to pay the current photocopy charge of $0.20 cents per page for orders totaling more than 7 pages, or the scanning charge of $0.50 per page for research quality PDFs or $5 per high quality scan. For Colgate students, faculty, and staff there is no charge for university-sponsored projects.
